Orange County Moving to Less-Restrictive Orange Tier

On Sunday, March 14th, Orange County moved into the Red Tier on the State's blueprint for a safer economy after having met Red Tier metrics. Orange County can further relax COVID-19 rules for a host of businesses starting Wednesday, March 31, based on case counts and other data that show an improving public health situation.

As of Tuesday, March 30th, State data showed Orange County qualifies to move to the Orange Tier, meaning retail stores do not need to limit the number of shoppers in the store; churches and other worships center may expand to 50% capacity; and movie theaters, museums and restaurants may operate at 50% indoors. A full list of orange tier guidelines is available here.
