LAKE FOREST LAUNCHES OUTREACH CAMPAIGN ON COMMUNITY CHOICE AGGREGATION

The City Council directed staff to launch a community outreach campaign on Community Choice Aggregation (CCA) to gather more information on what options best fit the energy goals of residents and businesses. The campaign is set to focus on education and gathering community feedback on future steps regarding CCA.

As part of the City's efforts, the City and its CCA Consultant will host a Town Hall on Monday, May 10 at 6 p.m. inside the City Council Chambers. The event is open to the public and will also be available to view online. The Town Hall will include a CCA presentation and time for questions.

The meeting will also be on Zoom. Registration is required. Click here to register.

If you would like to submit a questions to be addressed at the Town Hall, or find more information about CCA's, visit www.lakeforestca.gov/CCA.

Orange County's Three Main Coronavirus Metrics Remain Low, But Fall Short of Yellow Tier

Orange County's progress against COVID-19 was mixed this week as its latest pandemic report card - which determines the strictness of a county's coronavirus-curbing rules - showed a slight gain in one metric and a minor setback in another, according to a state Department of Public Health update on Tuesday, April 27.

But compared to more dire periods of the pandemic, California's public health gauges show the coronavirus has slowed to a crawl amid a resurgence in other parts of the world. Orange County's COVID-19 case rate trickled down to a new low this week, settling at 2.6 cases per day per 100,000 residents - down from 2.8 cases per 100,000 last week.

Inspire Diagnostics Champions Return to Sports

Inspire Diagnostics is helping students return to sports activities across the state of California.

The Lake Forest-based COVID-19 test provider is the testing arm behind the Let Them Play sports movement, which has filed multiple lawsuits against the state, and spurred guidelines that have allowed a number of high school sports to resume.
